History

History

Romania became a member of the International Ice Hockey Federation on January 24, 1924

The Romanian women's national team made their debut at the 2001 Women's World hockey Championships B Qualification Group A In Bucharest, Romania. They took fifth place in the qualification event for Division II and thus entered the newly founded Division III in the following year.

At the Women's World Hockey Championships Division III In Maribor, Slovenia the Romania women won their first international game beating South Africa 6-1. At the Women's World Hockey Championships Division III In Dunedin, New Zealand they were relegated to Division IV, which is where they have been competing since then. As the lower divisions saw no match play in 2009 and there was no IIHF World Women's Championship in the Olympic year 2010, the Romanian team will played their first World Championship match in three years at the Women's World Hockey Championships Division IV In Reykjavik, Iceland. The Romania women finish in last place and have not played since.
